

Did you have someone who helped you get where you are today, or do you wish you had?

Futures for Kids (F4K) is a non-profit organization that uses technology to help students explore career opportunities that relate to their interests and passions. Through its online program, F4K also connects mentors with middle and high school students in North Carolina, regardless of location or socioeconomic background, to provide the relevance and motivation the students need to stay in school and succeed.

As a Career Coach with F4K, you can provide feedback and encouragement for students interested in what it is you do—what you like best, how you got there and why. It only takes a few minutes a week, and you can make an impact on a child's future while offering guidance to our future workforce. Everything is online so you can answer questions when your schedule permits, wherever you have an internet connection!
