It's imperative for executives to stay ahead of current trends and to push the envelope of innovation. Technology fuels innovation—an abstract concept that is constantly measured by a company's productivity and process.

At NCTA's 2009 CEO CONVERSATION, you will hear different perspectives from some very successful "Game Changers". These CEO's will share their thoughts on the importance of sticking to your principles and making ethical decisions, especially in the current economic climate; changing the future of education through leadership and the implementation of technology; inventing and utilizing new technologies to become a industry leader. Don't miss your chance to be a part of this engaging conversation.
